Irish kitchen in Cork

The fresh green colour of the Irish countryside is an unforgettable experience for everyone who sees it. The deliberate usage of this colour can capture the atmosphere in a room. The green colour in the kitchen is reminiscent of the green fields and herbs of Ireland.

Strong design

In the penthouse of an international professional footballer a gas fireplace was constructed according to a Scottish design. Stucco decoration in combination with alcoves creates an exciting atmosphere. The white colour supports the play of light and shadow.

Old made new

In order to highlight the Gobel tapestry in the stairwell, the stucco was draped in restrained old rose colour. The hue of the paint is in tune with the colours used in the tapestry.

Fin de siècle

The stucco in the large entrance area of this beautiful fin de siècle building in the first district of Vienna was renovated and gold embossed according to the regulations of the conservation authorities.

Big spaces

In this Viennese penthouse the interior design was combined with the owner's love for detail. Stucco mouldings – partially rounded – harmoniously complement the overall picture.

Original undertakings

The world famous majolica building of Otto Wagner has been declared a listed conservation building. The green railings were totally rusty; consequently the surface coats had to be renewed.

A new coat in the original green colour from the time of Otto Wagner preserved the original character of this Art Nouveau jewel.

Flagship store

Chervò is a prominent global manufacturer of golfing and sportswear. The exterior façades of the stores in Vienna, Stuttgart and Berlin were immersed in the original green colour of the Chervò brand.

Offices and medical practices

Besides refurbishing the walls and floors the entire office was painted in white and the old Viennese double doors received a coat of stylish smooth matt white varnish.

Fancy details

To highlight the details the stair-rail was coated in white paint.

First Viennese Spirits Museum

The entire historical façade was refurbished according to its original design; its yellow Schönbrunn paint combined with white paint accentuate the stucco and ornamentation.

Staging a remarkable effect

The façade of this building was inspired by a picture of a three-hundred year old Tuscan villa. The owner, an opera director, wanted his home to have a particularly individual style. Therefore a special glazing was developed for the exterior coat, which with a new technique was applied to the rough façade. Using a spatula technique, the paint was manually applied to the walls and afterwards covered with the glazing. The selected colour hue perfectly emphasises the antique charm of the building.

Vienna Town Hall

Electrical wiring ducts (approx. 300 m) had to be cut with extraordinary care into the beautifully painted ceilings of some halls. Afterwards the openings were carefully sealed. For this purpose a plaster was created according to a historical recipe, which allowed restoring of the original painting.

Detail of a courtyard entrance in Vienna's Gumpendorfer Straße

Over the past decades, the original appearance of the entrance has been totally destroyed and become decrepit. After challenging research work, the entrance was restored true to original.

Old Viennese style

The courtyard entrance to this fin de siècle building was designed with great love of detail according to the colours chosen by the customer. Its colours were refined and its appearance embellished with gold.

Company green

The lower ceilings and pillars were highlighted with the original green colour of the Chervò brand, and perfectly reflect the corporate identity of the company.

Under the stars

Star ceilings with varying electric light spots have become increasingly popular. The carefully chosen blue colour of the sky accentuates the atmosphere and the dome as though it were actually floating.

Marmoresque

Polished marble stucco was applied in several layers and gave the walls an exceptionally noble appearance resembling that of marble.

Colour in the bathroom

All walls in the bathroom were designed in Stucco Lustrato technique, which is well suited for wellness areas.

Hand painted frescoes

The fresco at the Andechser Bräu restaurant in Munich was created in cooperation with the renowned painter Rainer Maria Latzke. It was painted freehand on canvass in the artist's studio and afterwards mounted as a ceiling painting.

Atrium of the Royal Clipper

Royal Clipper is the queen of all tall ships, a floating luxury hotel. The trompe-l'oeil painting of the atrium spans over three decks.

Unrestricted view of the sky

The trompe-l'oeil painting of the cupola allows great views of the celestial skies. Enjoy them in our showroom.

Mystical painting

An Asian lakeland hiding hundreds of mystical stories was painted in a bedroom in soft, calming colours.

Moving mountains

A historical South Tyrol wooden sauna was re-built in Bratislava. A trompe-l'oeil painting of the mountains of South Tyrol perfectly complements the atmosphere.
